

Protesting Appropriately

Written by Roshanda Glenn

Behavior Solutions Academy

Sometimes, you might not like what your teacher asks you to do. It's important to speak up, but you need to do it the right way. Here are some tips to help you talk to your teachers when you disagree:

- 1. Do the Work First - Always start by following your teacher's instructions. Do the first few problems, even if you don't want to. This shows you're trying,
- 2. Stay Calm - If you're upset, take a deep breath and calm down. Write down how you feel. This helps you stay cool and explain yourself better when you talk to your teacher.
- 3. Ask to Talk - After you've done some work, with a calm and respectful tone ask to speak with your teacher. Explain why you disagree and give concrete examples.
- 4. Try to Make a Deal - Instead of trying to get out of all the work, see if you can do less.
- 5. Be Ready for a "No" - Remember, even if you explain yourself well, the teacher might still say no. Be ready for this. Teachers often have good reasons for what they ask you to do.
- 6. Ask Why, Then Move On - If the teacher says no, calmly ask why. If you think the teacher is wrong about something, politely tell them. But if they still say no, accept it and move on.

Talking to teachers when you disagree is about being respectful and clear. By using these tips, you can share your thoughts in a good way. This helps you solve problems now and may help you get what you want in the future.

(281)